TRANSFORMATIONAL LEADERSHIP SYLLABUS

INTRODUCTION

In earlier stages of the Diploma in Marketing Management, students are introduced to the basic principles and practical application of management concepts. The need for good and effective management cuts across different types of organisations in all sectors of the economy. Leadership in organisations is closely related to management as both contribute to the present and future success of the organisation. However, it should be noted that these concepts are complimentary, not synonymous. Leadership is exercised in organisations which comprise of business entities, government departments, non-governmental organisations and even family units. The distinction between leadership and management is important because people who succeed as managers are not necessarily good leaders.

OBJECTIVES

After completing this course, students should be able to:
